The following websites and instructions represent additional resources for continued study of the topics covered in our “At Home Science” online class. All materials on each website are the property of each individual website owner and have been reviewed by a Fairbanks Museum & Planetarium educator.

3-D Model of the human skeleton: https://sketchfab.com/3d-models/human-skeleton-highresolution-model-657a31ed9704423c8c4e752fb2506a74

Interactive human body: https://www.zygotebody.com

Images and Additional Information
Barn Spider: https://spideridentifications.com/barn.html

How to classify your ladybug: https://bugguide.net/node/view/179
ID your ladybug here in VT: https://vtecostudies.org/blog/my-fair-lady-beetle/

Lady bug flight video: https://www.nationalgeographic.com/animals/invertebrates/group/ladybugs/

If you take photos of ladybugs in your house, send them to the Vermont Atlas of Life for identification: https://val.vtecostudies.org

Nine-spotted Ladybug: https://www.projectnoah.org/spottings/5904468

Home Activity
Have a glass jar or cup with a cap or piece of cardboard to scoop ladybugs and then cover so that you can take a closer look at them. See if you can identify what ladybugs are living with you.